2017 PCC Bond Proposal

As Oregon’s largest institution of higher education, PCC serves more than 75,000 full- and part-time students from all backgrounds each year.

On the November 7, 2017 ballot, the PCC Board of Directors will ask voters in its service area to consider a bond. Funds from the bond would go directly to addressing repairs, modernizing and renovating facilities, improving safety and replacing outdated technology and equipment.

If the bond does not pass, the safety, infrastructure enhancement and modernization projects outlined below could not be completed.

Distributed at In-Service, fireside chats, etc.
Portland Community College, the largest college in Oregon, is placing a bond measure on the November 7th ballot. If passed, the bond would provide:

1. MODERNIZE CLASSROOM TECHNOLOGY
2. EXPAND HEALTH PROFESSIONS & WORKFORCE TRAINING PROGRAMS
3. IMPROVE SAFETY & SUSTAINABILITY

PCC bond proposals would also provide good-paying jobs for local minority-owned, women-owned, and emerging small businesses.

What would PCC’s Bond Measure do?

What would the bond cost?

If passed, PCC bond measures are ranked to maintain current tax rates for local property owners. The bond proposal would generate an estimated $188 million. This would result in a tax rate of $0.94 per $1,000 of assessed property value, for 4 years.

How does PCC serve the community?

PCC provides affordable, accessible education and training and the cost of a PCC degree is on par with the cost of a private college.

PCC offers opportunities in a wide range of fields, from technical to health professions, and now in 113 areas of study. PCC is also a major employer in Clackamas County, and a major economic driver.

PCC provides people with the training they need for more family wage jobs.

Every dollar invested in PCC returns $12.50 to Oregon’s economy in added state revenue and social savings.
