Estimates do not include:

- Three-month vacation term
- Travel to and from your home country
- Tourist travel while attending school
- Personal computer

If you plan to remain in the U.S. during your vacation term, you will need to plan for additional living expenses.

F-1 Visa Requirements

Students must maintain F-1 student status for the duration of their studies. Students who are out of status are subject to termination. When an F-1 SEVIS record is terminated, the following happens:

- Student loses all on- and/or off-campus employment authorization.
- Student cannot re-enter the United States on the terminated SEVIS record.
- Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) agents may investigate to confirm the departure of the student.
- Any associated F-2 dependent records are terminated.

To maintain status:

Although F-1 students must only show proof of funds for the first academic year of study (9 months) to secure a visa, funding must be available for the entire course of study from personal or sponsored funding sources. International students are NOT eligible for financial aid and U.S. Federal immigration regulations severely restrict international student employment so students should not expect to fund their studies or other expenses by earning income in the United States.

F-1 students are not allowed to work off-campus without prior approval and a record of the work opportunity printed on the I-20 Certificate of Eligibility. Note, work includes any performance of services or requirement to be on premises in exchange for payments made to or on behalf of employees. Students who work without authorization must be terminated.

F-1 students must maintain full-time enrollment with 9 or 12 credit hours in-person depending on academic level. In some cases, students may request a reduced course load. These must be approved before study hours are adjusted.

If financial commitment is not met, the student will not be able to register for future terms, and will be considered out of status for "failure to enroll".
