

Management/Supervisory Development CTE Program 2011 Report for Assessment of Degree Outcomes

*This report addresses questions requested by the Portland Community College Learning Assessment Council.
To ensure clarity, all MSD Program Responses are in dark blue.*

1. Describe changes that have been implemented towards improving students' attainment of outcomes that resulted from outcome assessments carried out in the previous academic year.
 - Developed and launched an MSD Groups page for all faculty to discuss various teaching, student, and learning issues.
 - Added 3 core courses to the MSD AAS degree.
 - Developed and received approval for two new courses (MSD 122A and MSD 123A)
2. Identify the outcomes assessed this year, and describe the methods used. What were the results of the assessment (i.e., what did you learn about how well students are meeting the outcomes)?

I. DIRECT ASSESSMENT

Include relevant information about:

- The students (how many, where in your program (one class, a group of classes, end of degree?))

Forty two students from 11 3-credit classes ranging from entry level to more complex. Our program does not have a prescribed order for taking the courses.

- The nature of the assessment (written work, projects, quizzes)

The Plans submitted in November 2010:

1. Collect student artifacts: projects, papers, essays, exams, from Fall and Winter Term classes. Instructors will select 3 artifacts, graded high/medium/low and get written student permission to use their work for this assessment.
 2. MSD SAC will apply a rubric to assess what level of competency students are demonstrating in achieving the program outcomes via their artifacts.
 3. MSD SAC will modify the 2009-2010 student survey to incorporate all the MSD Program Outcomes. The survey will be via Survey Monkey. Target will be sent to all the program award recipients & graduates (2010). (In 2009 we sent 85 surveys).
- The Assessment looked at how MSD Courses are supporting student achievement of each of the 8 MSD Program Outcomes.
 - Each of the 11 courses were mapped to the particular program outcome(s) they support.
 - We collected 42 artifacts from 11 3-credit classes. These included quizzes, term projects, research papers, interview reports, and personal reflections.
 - Instructors were asked for end of term artifacts, but we used everything they collected.
 - Our assessment team developed an MSD Program Outcome Rubric for evaluating student artifacts against our Program Outcomes. (rubric below)

- How was the assessment evaluated?
 - Three faculty members read each of the 42 artifacts, completing a rubric for each of the related Program Outcomes.
 - This resulted in many of the artifacts being rated quite a few times, depending on how many outcomes each course supports.
 - With 42 artifacts, the total number of reviews by three faculty was 471.
 - We reviewed the compiled results and drew conclusions about the process and the results.

Results: what was learned from the direct assessment:

1. 43% achieved Mastery
24% achieved Emerging
0% achieved Static (not enough information on assigned student objectives)
33% were not-applicable (not enough information on assigned student objectives)
2. Removing the N/A artifacts:
64% achieved Mastery
36% achieved Emerging
3. The final project/paper assignments tended to support the Program Outcomes to a great (Mastery) or to some (Emerging) degree.
4. The “static” category was disregarded, after initial attempts to assess the artifacts, due to lack of information on assignment objectives. It wasn’t possible to determine if a student did not try do what was asked.
5. With 33% of the artifacts rejected as not-applicable for this assessment, it raised questions about alignment of our CCOGs to the Program Outcomes.
6. Due to a temporary shift in our student population base, there has been an increased percentage of unemployed students, resulting in an increased number of home projects which do not directly correlate to program outcomes. This is a trend for which we have no control over.
7. Additional questions were raised regarding alignment of individual course teaching/learning objectives to the Program Outcomes
8. Attempting to use the rubric to measure achievement of the Program Outcomes raised questions about just how measurable the Program Outcomes are.

* N/A = parameters of artifacts did not reach the overall outcome.
 Artifacts that were class projects met the criteria of mastery or emerging.
 Smaller assignments did not apply.
 Not a teaching issue, simply the wrong artifacts for this assessment.

3. Identify any changes that should, as a result of this DIRECT assessment, be implemented towards improving students' attainment of outcomes.

Improvements to teaching for all Program Outcomes:

1. Faculty are currently reviewing the CCOGs for their classes to identify gaps in class delivery and student performance.
2. SAC will rewrite those CCOGs which need immediate alignment with Program Outcomes.

3. The SAC will examine strategies to assist faculty in closing gaps between class core outcomes and actual class delivery and student performance. These include forming a subcommittee to:
 - Reframe assessment artifacts expectations for the 2012 MSD Program Assessment.
 - Provide a sampling of rubrics for faculty to encourage student involvement in meeting class outcomes.

Improvements to assessment process:

1. Require faculty to provide more information on the actual assignments, rather than just the artifact. Often it wasn't clear what the assignment objectives were. This made it necessary to reject some of the artifacts as not-applicable. By doing this, we would increase the number of artifacts viable for the assessment.
2. Require faculty to submit comprehensive artifacts that cover a wide spectrum of class outcomes. Examples might be final projects, term papers, or final exams, rather than small, weekly type assignments.
3. Require assessment team to write more specific guidelines on the Rubric. Including a list of specific actions to look for with each Program Outcome. Also define a detailed measuring tool for Mastery, Emerging, and Static.
4. Require assessment of artifacts from a cross section of MSD Courses, including 1 credit classes, to fully evaluate each outcome.

II. INDIRECT ASSESSMENT:

Include relevant information about:

- The students (how many, where in your program (one class, a group of classes, end of degree?))

An electronic survey (see at end of document) was sent to 2010/2011 recipients of the MSD AAS Degree (24) and also to recipients of one or more MSD 18-hour Professional Program Awards (65). Seventeen students (19%) responded regarding their perspectives on their achievement of Program Outcome #1:

Enhance an organization's ability to thrive in a diverse, rapidly changing, and increasingly global business environment by carrying out supervisory or managerial responsibilities in a manner that reflects professional standards and ethics, sustainability, and social responsibility.

- 4 earned the AAS Degree
- 1 earned the AAS Degree and a Professional Program Award
- 4 earned the MSD Certificate (1 year)
- 2 earned one Professional Program Award
- 6 earned more than one Professional Program Awards

- The nature of the INDIRECT assessment

The survey (developed with assistance from Institutional Effectiveness) asked 8 questions, 6 of which identified various components of the Program Outcome #1 (identified above).

- The first question helped identify the status of each student in terms of degree, certificate, or PPA.
- The second question asked about changes in job responsibilities due to impact of MSD courses.
- The third question asked about preparedness for managing a diverse workforce.
- The fourth question asked about preparedness for dealing with rapid workplace change.
- The fifth question asked about preparedness for managing in a global business environment.
- The sixth question asked about preparedness to manage with professional standards and ethics.
- The seventh question asked about preparedness for managing with sustainability practices.
- The eighth question asked about preparedness for managing in a socially responsible manner.

- How was the assessment evaluated?
Student responses were compiled and percentages calculated. SAC will see the results in the Fall SAC Meeting.

Results: What did you learn?

Overall results:

I developed solid skills that make me feel confident:	52%	} 78%
I developed good skills that help my confidence:	26%
I still need to develop confidence in my skills:	13%
My skills need a lot of work:	0%
I don't know or not applicable:	9%

Students answer this survey on a voluntary basis.

While we don't know specifically what motivates a student to respond, the results and comments certainly indicate that the majority of the responders are happy with their MSD program experiences.

That being said, the results indicate that 78% of the students feel they developed skills that make them feel confident facing a number of managerial or supervisory challenges (as described in Outcome #1).

4. Identify any changes that should, as a result of this INDIRECT assessment, be implemented towards improving students' attainment of outcomes.

We plan to continue using surveys to ask students directly for their self assessment regarding the MSD Program Outcomes.

Plans for change:

1. Identify more effective strategies for soliciting student responses.
 - Send the survey link individually throughout the year, as students earn their PPAs, prior to issuing the Professional Program Award confirmation, rather than sending all emails at the same time.
 - Ask MSD Advisor's to send the link to students who come in for graduation reviews.
 - Ask faculty to distribute the link during Spring term and to encourage students to complete the survey.
2. It would be useful to learn more about the 13% who feel they still need to develop confidence in their skills. This may be a reflection of the unemployed status of so many MSD Students.
 - Review survey results with SAC to brainstorm follow up actions.
 - SAC review instructional strategies to help students learn to transfer classroom learned skills into their future workplaces.

Question 9: What else would you like us to know about your experience that might help us improve the MSD Program?

I was very fortunate to have found these courses in the MSD program. Although I'm not working right now (I'm on disability), I value the information that I was given and the experience of the instructors and I'm sure that I will put it all together one day soon.

I really enjoyed taking these MSD classes and the instructors. I have learned so much. I didn't even know how to log on to a computer when I started or turn one on for that matter. For the most part I received straight A's in all my classes.

The MSD Program is great just how it is! It has helped me immensely in the progression of my professional development here at PCC! Thank you!

I think that role playing should be a part of the program. It would be very challenging for the instructors to set-up unexpected scenarios that we have to respond to by creating our own dialogue and our own systematic response to a given situation. I think that "hands-on" conflict would be a good strategy to use in terms of teaching actual skills. I did take away a lot of valuable information, and I review my notes (regularly). Yet, at times, I struggle with deciding on the dialogue and the steps when I am in a spur-of-the-moment situation.

Taking the classes on-line are the only way I could have gotten as far as I have while I was working shift work. Thank you!

nothing at this time

The program is pretty good. having classes that are easier to take online and in evening hours would be good

I would the course MSD 122 to be online!

I enjoyed the Saturday classes and interacting with other managerial students.

Nothing

Having the course completely available on line made it possible for me to take the course.

Work a little more closely with other universities to make sure all of the credits carry over towards a bachelors degree.

Nothing else, thank you.

No need for improvement!

Great Program- I recommend it to anyone lookig for a direction in the job and education arenas.

I want to commend you on the quality of your programs. I took a masters prepared class at the same time that I took one of your classes and they had some of the same up-to-date, hot-off-the-press information. Amazing, in my opinion.
